Washington needs fiscal accountability to rein in out-of-control spending, not tax increases for you and your family. The average American works hard each day to earn a living, spending the first three hours in a day working to pay their Federal, State, and Local taxes. Our government should find ways to be more efficient and allow the people to keep more of their own money through continued tax relief.

{loadposition related}