

The United States faces complicated challenges in the world today. Congress is responsible in part for crafting foreign policy that is effective and fiscally accountable in maintaining and furthering America's interests abroad.

{loadposition related}